The Emergency Room

Go to the Emergency Room (ER) only when you have a serious health problems that could cause lasting injury or death. Examples include: severe bleeding, chest pain, shortness of breath, severe pain, broken bones, loss of consciousness, or severe allergic reaction.

If the problem is not a real emergency, you may have to pay the bill

Do not go to the Emergency Room (ER) for treatment of a cold, a cough or other minor illness or injury that your doctor can treat in his/her office or over the phone.

Do not go to the ER because it is easier and more convenient for your schedule.

You will be responsible to pay for non-referred, non-emergency services.

Be ready for a real emergency

- ✓ Ask your Primary Care Provider (PCP) office for a number to call after hours. Use this number if your problem is serious but not life-threatening.
- ✓ Call 911 or go to the emergency room if there is a bad injury, sudden illness, or an illness that is quickly getting much worse. If you're not sure...call your doctor!

If you are not sure what to do, call your doctor's office. Your PCP or on-call staff can be reached by telephone 24 hours a day, seven days a week. If the PCP or on-call staff contacts the ER prior to a nonemergent services, Medicaid will pay for services.

Important

If you go to the ER and your health problem is not a true emergency (a serious health problem that can cause lasting injury or death) without a referral from your PCP, you may have to pay for the ER visit.
