Introduction

Medicaid can help couples pay the cost of a spouse’s care in a medical facility

This handbook answers questions on how Medicaid may be able to help a couple pay the cost of a spouse’s care in a medical facility. A couple may not have to spend all of their money before the spouse in the medical facility qualifies for Medicaid.

The policies in this handbook apply only if you plan to stay or have stayed in the medical facility 30 days or more and entered after September 30, 1989.

Some of the information in this handbook may be hard to understand. If you have any questions, please contact the Division of Economic Assistance at your local Department of Social Services (DSS) office.

Below are some terms you will see throughout this handbook:

Resource Protection: A certain amount of the things owned and the money saved by the couple can be kept by the spouse at home. Resource protection is also referred to as the “protected share.”

Income Allowance: The amount of income that can be protected for the spouse at home.

Community Spouse: The community spouse could live in the couple’s own house or apartment, with relatives or in other non-facility settings.

Medicaid: A joint federal and state program that can help pay medical bills including cost of care in a medical facility.

Medical Facility: A hospital, nursing home, many assisted living facilities or when receiving certain approved medical services in your home or community.

Long-Term Care Partnership Program: The South Dakota Long-Term Care Partnership Program, administered by the Department of Social Services and Division of Insurance, provides an alternative to spending down or transferring assets by forming a partnership between Medicaid and private long-term care insurers.

When can Medicaid help?

Medicaid could pay the full facility cost or part of the facility cost depending on your resources and income.

To find out if the spouse in the facility qualifies for Medicaid, individuals should contact their local Department of Social Services (DSS). Phone numbers for the offices can be found in the back of this guide. Most facilities will also have the contact information for the Department of Social Services office serving their facility.

You need to complete an application form to see if you qualify for Medicaid. Applications are available at local DSS offices, or by visiting dss.sd.gov/formsandpubs/ and at most medical facilities.
The following pages have information on the resource and income guidelines your DSS Economic Assistance benefits specialist will follow to see if requirements are met for Medicaid to pay toward the cost of care in the medical facility and to establish the amount of the resource protection for the spouse at home.

Resources

What resources can be protected?

When a spouse enters a medical facility, there are four main steps to determine the resources that can be protected for the spouse at home and when the spouse in the medical facility can qualify for Medicaid.

1. Total Resources:
   If the spouse entering a medical facility (expecting to stay for 30 days or more) is going to need Medicaid now or in the future, the protection of resources for the spouse at home depends on the couple’s combined resources as of the day the spouse entered the medical facility.

   Because of this, the amount of resources that can be protected should be determined as soon as possible. Your DSS Economic Assistance benefits specialist can give you a form called “Request for Resource Assessment” that you fill out as soon as a spouse enters the medical facility. It is better to fill this form out as soon as possible after entry because it is easier to prove your resources for the day the spouse entered the facility now than at a later date. When you have completed the form, return it to your DSS office. The Economic Assistance benefits specialist will request information and documents to confirm what you have stated on the form. Through a “Notice of Resource Assessment,” you will be notified on what resources can be protected; otherwise this information is confidential.

2. Countable Resources:
   Resources owned by either spouse, jointly or separately, as of the day of entry into the facility must be counted. Resources will be reported on the “Request for Resource Assessment” form.

   Resources counted include, but are not limited to: Cash, savings and checking accounts, certificates of deposit, stocks and bonds, the cash value of life insurance, annuities, life estates, contracts for the sale of real estate and other financial instruments.

   Resources not counted include: The house in which the spouse (or dependent relative) lives in, a vehicle, most household goods/personal effects and certain funds designated for burial expenses.

3. Resources For Each Spouse:
   You will see several dollar amounts followed by this symbol “*”. This means the 2021 amounts in this document will be indexed for inflation and will change when the federal government releases an annual inflation rate. The maximum amount of protected share for the spouse at home may be increased by a court order, or by an appeal decision, in order to increase income of the spouse at home.

   To determine the amount of resources that can be protected for the spouse at home, the amount of your countable resources as a couple is totaled. One-half of the total resources or $26,076*, whichever is greater, can be protected for the spouse at home. However, if half of the resources are more than $130,380*, only $130,380* can be protected for the spouse at home.

   Note: Resources given away by either spouse may affect the Medicaid payment to the nursing facility.

4. Medicaid Eligibility:
   To determine if the spouse in the medical facility is eligible for Medicaid to help pay medical facility costs, the protected share for the spouse at home is subtracted from the couple’s total resources. If the result is $2,000 or less, the spouse in the medical facility meets the resource test for Medicaid to help pay the facility cost.

   Note: If the spouse in the medical facility has a long-term care partnership policy that has paid benefits on his or her behalf, he or she will also receive a resource protection equal to the amount of benefits paid by the policy. The resource test for eligibility is then equal to the amount of benefits paid on his or her behalf plus $2,000. See last example on page 6.

Here are some examples that may help you better understand resource protection:

Example: Mr. Erickson entered a nursing home on March 27, 2021. He and his wife together own $200,000 in countable resources. One half of their countable resources is $100,000. Mrs. Erickson living at home, was able to keep $100,000 and the remaining $100,000 was counted for Mr. Erickson. Since resources of $100,000 were counted for Mr. Erickson, his resources exceeded the $2,000 resource limit and he did not qualify for Medicaid payments to the nursing home at this time. Note: The $100,000 can be spent down to the $2,000 resource limit by either Mr. or Mrs. Erickson.

Example: Mr. Roth entered a nursing home in May 2021. Mr. and Mrs. Roth together have countable resources of $11,000. All of the resources are protected for Mrs. Roth since total resources are less than $26,076*, and Mr. Roth is resource eligible for Medicaid.

Example: Mrs. Jones entered a nursing home on August 15, 2021. Together she and her husband have $280,000 in countable resources. One half of their countable resources is $140,000. Mr. Jones, living at home is able to keep $130,380*. The remaining $149,620 is counted for Mrs. Jones. Fortunately, Mrs. Jones also has a Long Term Care partnership insurance policy which had paid out $156,360 on her behalf before she applied for Medicaid. The amount of benefits her Partnership policy paid on her behalf is disregarded when determining Medicaid eligibility. Mrs. Jones is resource eligible for Medicaid at this time as the total resources counted for Mrs. Jones less the amount disregarded due to her Partnership policy is less than $2,000.

Does it matter whose name the resources are in?

Yes. Once the spouse in the medical facility is eligible for Medicaid, resources must be counted for the spouse who actually owns the resources. Any resources owned by the spouse in the medical facility that are more than the $2,000 resource limit must be transferred to the spouse at home soon after the spouse in the facility is determined Medicaid eligible. This must be done so the spouse in the facility can remain eligible for Medicaid.

Exception: Resources protected by a Long Term Care Partnership Policy do not have to be transferred to the spouse at home.

Here is an example of resource protection and resource ownership:

Example: Mr. Johnson entered a nursing home on June 2, 2021. He and his wife together have countable resources of $27,000. Even though half of these resources are $13,500, Mrs. Johnson can keep $26,076*. Since only $924 needs to be counted as a resource to Mr. Johnson, he could qualify for Medicaid payments to the nursing home. However, Mr. Johnson owns a Certificate of Deposit (CD) valued over $2,000. In order to remain eligible for Medicaid payments to the nursing home, he must transfer ownership of the CD to his wife so his resources will be within the $2,000 limit. He could transfer all or a part of the CD to his wife. This transfer must be made as soon as possible from approval for Medicaid to ensure continued Medicaid eligibility.
What is the income limit?
The income of the spouse in the medical facility cannot be more than three times the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefit for Medicaid to help pay the cost of the facility. (Three times the 2021 SSI benefit is $2,382* per month.) If the income of the spouse in the facility is more than three times the SSI benefit there may still be eligibility if the income is placed in an approved income trust. Visit your local DSS Economic Assistance office for more information on income limits or approved income trusts.

What income can be protected?
Once the spouse living in the medical facility qualifies for Medicaid payments to the facility, his or her income can be protected for the spouse at home. There are three main guidelines to determine what income can be protected.

1. Monthly Income:
The spouse in the medical facility can keep $60 of monthly income for personal needs, plus up to an additional $75 from his or her earned income. The spouse in the facility may use the remaining income as described in 2 and 3.

2. Income Allowance:
A portion of income of the spouse living in the medical facility may be allowed for the spouse at home. The income of the spouse at home is subtracted from $2,177.50* to determine the amount of income the spouse in the facility can give to the spouse at home. The income allowance may be greater than $2,177.50* if the spouse at home has shelter expenses in excess of the standard amount or there is a court order or an appeal decision ordering a greater amount. It is possible that the income allowance will be greater than the income available from the spouse in the facility.

An amount of income can also be allowed for certain dependent relatives living with the spouse at home. This amount is determined by subtracting the gross monthly income of each dependent from $2,177.50* and dividing that amount by three. The spouse in the medical facility must first provide income for the spouse at home before any income can be made available to the dependents.

3. Remaining Income:
The remaining income of the spouse in the facility can be used for certain private health insurance premiums, if any, for him or her. The rest of his or her income is used toward payment of the cost of care in the facility.

Here are some examples that may help you better understand income protection:

Example: Mrs. Rogers lives in a nursing home with $400 gross monthly income and Mr. Rogers lives at home with $900 gross monthly income. The amount of income allowance that can be protected for Mr. Rogers is determined as follows:

Mrs. Rogers (in facility)
$400.00 gross monthly income
- $60.00 personal needs
$340.00 is available

Mr. Rogers (at home)
$2,177.50* income allowance
- $900.00 gross monthly income
$1,277.50 could be allowed from Mrs. Rogers’ income for Mr. Rogers, but she only has $340 available to give him.

Example: Mr. Smith lives in a nursing home and Mrs. Smith is living at home. Mr. Smith has gross monthly income of $1,300. Mrs. Smith has gross monthly income of $1,000. The amount of income allowance that can be protected for Mrs. Smith is determined as follows:

Mr. Smith (in facility)
$1,300.00 gross monthly income
- $60.00 personal needs
$1,240.00 is available
Mrs. Smith (at home)

$2,177.50 income allowance
-$1,000.00 gross monthly income
$1,177.50 can be allowed from Mr. Smith’s income for Mrs.
Smith.

Mr. Smith has remaining income of $62.50 after giving the $1,177.50 to Mrs. Smith. ($1,240 minus $1,177.50 leaves $62.50). Of the remaining income, an allowance can be made for Mr. Smith’s private health insurance premium or Medicare Part D co-payments, and the remainder would then go to the facility as payment toward Mr. Smith’s nursing home services. The Division of Economic Assistance determines the amount the spouse in the nursing home must pay the facility toward his or her nursing home care costs. The income of the spouse at home is NOT used to pay for the cost of care of the spouse in the nursing facility.

Does it matter whose name the income is in?
When income is issued in the name of an individual, it is considered income to that individual. If the income is in the names of both spouses, the income is considered as one half for each spouse.
If there is trust property, the income is considered according to the trust document. Examples of income include Social Security and Veteran’s pensions and compensations, pensions from employment, etc. If an income allowance is allowed for the spouse at home, the income of each spouse must be established and any changes in income of either spouse must be reported to the Division of Economic Assistance within 10 days of the change. If there is a dependent receiving an income allowance, any changes in his or her income must also be reported within 10 days.

Rights

What are my rights?
If you are dissatisfied with the actions or lack of action by the Division of Economic Assistance, you should discuss the matter with your DSS benefits specialist. If an agreement cannot be reached, you have a right to file an appeal and ask for a fair hearing. If you believe more income or resources should be protected for the community spouse to raise the community spouse’s income, you have a right to file an appeal 30 days from the date you receive notice of the results of your application for Medicaid assistance. When you appeal the decision this protects your right to a fair hearing. If a hearing is requested, it will be an informal meeting before an administrative law judge from DSS Administrative Hearings in which you can present your complaint.
All the facts will be reviewed to see if the decision was correct or should be changed.

Once you or your spouse has been approved for Medicaid, you will continue to have fair hearing rights. If you or your spouse receive a “Notice of Action” you feel is incorrect, you have 10 days to request a hearing to continue your Medicaid benefits until your appeal is heard or decided.

Responsibilities

What are my responsibilities?

request services from a health care provider.
